

Global Arbitration Review

The Guide to Advocacy

---

General Editors

Stephen Jagusch QC and Philippe Pinsolle

Associate Editor

Alexander G Leventhal

Third Edition

The Guide to Advocacy

Third Edition

General Editors

Stephen Jagusch QC and Philippe Pinsolle

Associate Editor

Alexander G Leventhal

Reproduced with permission from Law Business Research Ltd

This article was first published in October 2018

For further information please contact Natalie.Clarke@lbresearch.com

Publisher

David Samuels

Business Development Manager

Gemma Chalk

Editorial Coordinator

Hannah Higgins

Head of Production

Adam Myers

Deputy Head of Production

Simon Busby

Copy-editor

Anna Andreoli

Proofreaders

Janina Godowska and Tessa Brummitt

Published in the United Kingdom
by Law Business Research Ltd, London
87 Lancaster Road, London, W11 1QQ, UK
© 2018 Law Business Research Ltd
www.globalarbitrationreview.com

No photocopying: copyright licences do not apply.

The information provided in this publication is general and may not apply in a specific situation, nor does it necessarily represent the views of authors' firms or their clients. Legal advice should always be sought before taking any legal action based on the information provided. The publishers accept no responsibility for any acts or omissions contained herein. Although the information provided is accurate as of September 2018, be advised that this is a developing area.

Enquiries concerning reproduction should be sent to Law Business Research, at the address above. Enquiries concerning editorial content should be directed to the Publisher – David.Samuels@lbresearch.com

ISBN 978-1-78915-096-4

Printed in Great Britain by Encompass Print Solutions, Derbyshire
Tel: 0844 2480 112

Acknowledgements

The publisher acknowledges and thanks the following for their learned assistance throughout the preparation of this book:

20 ESSEX STREET CHAMBERS

ARNOLD & PORTER KAYE SCHOLER LLP

BAKER MCKENZIE

BONELLIEREDE

BRICK COURT CHAMBERS

CHAFFETZ LINDSEY LLP

CMS HASCHE SIGLE

DR. COLIN ONG LEGAL SERVICES

EVOKE LEGAL DESIGN

HABERMAN ILETT LLP

KING & SPALDING

LALIVE

QUINN EMANUEL URQUHART & SULLIVAN LLP

REED SMITH LLP

SHARDUL AMARCHAND MANGALDAS & CO

SIDLEY AUSTIN LLP

Acknowledgments

SQUIRE PATTON BOGGS

WHITE & CASE

WILMER CUTLER PICKERING HALE AND DORR LLP

WONGPARTNERSHIP LLP

ZULFICAR & PARTNERS LAW FIRM

Contents

Introduction .....	1
Stephen Jagusch QC and Philippe Pinsolle
1 Case Strategy and Preparation for Effective Advocacy .....	4
Colin Ong QC
2 Written Advocacy .....	20
Thomas K Sprange QC
3 The Initial Hearing .....	37
Grant Hanessian
4 Opening Submissions .....	51
Franz T Schwarz
5 Direct and Re-Direct Examination.....	69
Anne Véronique Schlaepfer and Vanessa Alarcón Duvanel
6 Cross-Examination of Fact Witnesses: The Civil Law Perspective.....	84
Philippe Pinsolle
7 Cross-Examination of Fact Witnesses: The Common Law Perspective .....	94
Stephen Jagusch QC
8 Cross-Examination of Experts .....	108
David Roney

Contents

9	The Role of the Expert in Advocacy .....	127
	Philip Haberman
10	Closing Arguments .....	139
	Hilary Heilbron QC and Klaus Reichert SC
11	Tips for Second-Chairing an Oral Argument .....	153
	Mallory Silberman and Timothy L Foden
12	The Effective Use of Technology in the Arbitral Hearing Room .....	162
	Whitley Tiller and Timothy L Foden
13	How to Mock Your Case Effectively .....	176
	Yasmine Lahlou
14	Cultural Considerations in Advocacy: East Meets West .....	182
	Alvin Yeo SC and Chou Sean Yu
15	Cultural Considerations in Advocacy: India .....	192
	Tejas Karia and Rishab Gupta
16	Cultural Considerations in Advocacy: Arab World .....	198
	Mohamed S Abdel Wahab
17	Cultural Considerations in Advocacy: Continental Europe .....	217
	Torsten Lörcher
18	Cultural Considerations in Advocacy: United Kingdom .....	230
	David Lewis QC
19	Cultural Considerations in Advocacy: Latin America .....	237
	José I Astigarraga and Eduardo J De la Peña Bernal

Contents

20	Cultural Considerations in Advocacy: United States .....	245
	Laurence Shore
21	Advocacy in International Sport Arbitration.....	254
	James H Carter
22	Advocacy in Investment Treaty Arbitration.....	265
	Stephen P Anway
23	Advocacy in Construction Arbitration .....	278
	James Bremen and Elizabeth Wilson
24	Arbitration Advocacy and Criminal Matters: The Arbitration Advocate as Master of Strategy.....	289
	Juan P Morillo, Gabriel F Soledad and Alexander G Leventhal
	The Contributing Authors .....	305
	The Contributing Arbitrators.....	321
	Contact Details.....	339
	Index.....	347

14

Cultural Considerations in Advocacy: East Meets West

Alvin Yeo SC and Chou Sean Yu<sup>1</sup>

Introduction

Arbitration practitioners today argue their cases all over the world. More than ever, they act for parties from every conceivable jurisdiction.

The global rise of arbitration is perhaps most evident in Asia. Home to the two most populous countries in the world, Asia is not only the world's largest manufacturer but the largest recipient of foreign investment and net capital exporter.<sup>2</sup> The opening of major Asian markets to foreign investors has resulted in increased trade and given rise to arbitration being the preferred cross-border dispute resolution mechanism, in preference to national courts. The statistics show this; for example, the Singapore International Arbitration Centre (SIAC) saw 452 new cases in 2017,<sup>3</sup> compared with 86 new cases a decade earlier (a more than 400 per cent increase),<sup>4</sup> and 374 of these 452 new cases were international cases (83 per cent).<sup>5</sup> The annual caseload of the China International Economic and Trade Arbitration Commission (CIETAC) was 2,183 new cases in 2016, compared with 981 cases in 2006 (a more than 100 per cent increase), and 485 of these 2,183 new cases were

-
- 1 Alvin Yeo SC is the chairman and senior partner and Chou Sean Yu is a partner of WongPartnership LLP. The authors would like to thank Oh Sheng Loong Frank, a senior associate of WongPartnership LLP, for his invaluable assistance with this chapter.
  - 2 Huang Jing, 'The Rise of Asia: Implications and Challenges', Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy, at [1] <<http://global-is-asian.nus.edu.sg/index.php/the-rise-of-asia-implications-and-challenges/>>.
  - 3 SIAC, 'SIAC Announces New Records for 2017', 7 March 2018 <www.siac.org.sg/69-siac-news/560-siac-announces-new-records-for-2017> (accessed 6 June 2018).
  - 4 SIAC, 'SIAC Announces New Records for 2017', 7 March 2018 <www.siac.org.sg/69-siac-news/560-siac-announces-new-records-for-2017> (accessed 6 June 2018); SIAC Annual Report 2017 at 13 <http://www.siac.org.sg/images/stories/articles/annual\_report/SIAC\_Annual\_Report\_2017.pdf> (accessed 6 June 2018).
  - 5 SIAC Annual Report 2017 at 14 <http://www.siac.org.sg/images/stories/articles/annual\_report/SIAC\_Annual\_Report\_2017.pdf> (accessed 6 June 2018).

foreign-related.<sup>6</sup> By comparison, 810 new cases were filed with the International Chamber of Commerce (ICC) in 2017,<sup>7</sup> compared with 599 new cases in 2007 (a more than 30 per cent increase).<sup>8</sup> Singapore and Hong Kong were recently ranked as the third and fourth most preferred arbitral seat worldwide, after London and Paris, and ahead of Geneva, New York and Stockholm.<sup>9</sup>

Disputes referred to international arbitration often bring together arbitrators, counsel and witnesses from different jurisdictions with different cultures and practices – in 2017 alone, the SIAC appointed 263 arbitrators from more than 20 countries, including Australia, Canada, China, Denmark, France, Germany, Greece, India, Indonesia, Japan, Malaysia, New Zealand, Portugal, Singapore, South Africa, South Korea, the United Kingdom and the United States of America.<sup>10</sup> Despite increasing harmonisation in international arbitration (for instance, the advent of the UNCITRAL Model Law on International Commercial Arbitration in 1985 and its revision in 2006 in a bid to assist states in reforming, modernising and harmonising their laws on arbitral procedure), there remain inevitable differences arising from varied backgrounds and environments. With trade disputes worldwide increasingly involving an Asian nexus,<sup>11</sup> a good advocate would need to understand these differences and consider how best to represent his or her client's interests in the context of such cultural diversity, particularly in a continent as varied as Asia.

Arbitration advocacy

Advocacy is the art of persuasion and the goal of an advocate is to persuade.<sup>12</sup> In an arbitration, the object of persuasion is, of course, the arbitral tribunal.

To effectively persuade the members of the tribunal, an advocate first has to understand how they process information and make decisions. Arbitrators, like all human beings, are complex. They do not make decisions in a vacuum – a submission from an advocate is tested and compared against the arbitrators' personal perceptions of the world and their

---

6 CIETAC, CIETAC Annual Caseload <<http://www.cietac.org/index.php?m=Page&a=index&id=40&l=en>> (accessed 6 June 2018).

7 The Honourable the Chief Justice Sundaresh Menon: Keynote Address delivered at the SIAC Congress 2018 dated 17 May 2018, p. 5 <https://www.supremecourt.gov.sg/Data/Editor/Documents/SIAC%20Congress%202018%20Keynote%20Address%20%20\(Checked%20against%20delivery%20with%20footnotes%20-%20170518\).pdf.pdf)> (accessed 6 June 2018).

8 ICC, 'ICC announces 2017 figures confirming global reach and leading position for complex, high-value disputes', 7 March 2018 <<https://iccwbo.org/media-wall/news-speeches/icc-announces-2017-figures-confirming-global-reach-leading-position-complex-high-value-disputes/>> (accessed 11 June 2018); ICC, '2007 Statistical Report' (2008) 19(1) ICC International Court of Arbitration Bulletin.

9 SIAC, 'SIAC is Most Preferred Arbitral Institution in Asia and 3rd in the World', 10 May 2018 <<http://www.siac.org.sg/our-rules/69-siac-news/568-siac-is-most-preferred-arbitral-institution-in-asia-and-3rd-in-the-world>> (accessed 6 June 2018).

10 SIAC Annual Report 2017 at 16 <http://www.siac.org.sg/images/stories/articles/annual\_report/SIAC\_Annual\_Report\_2017.pdf> (accessed 6 June 2018).

11 Michael J. Moser, 'How Asia Will Change International Arbitration' in Albert Jan van den Berg (ed), International Arbitration: The Coming of a New Age?, ICCA Congress Series, Volume 17 (Kluwer Law International; Kluwer Law International 2013) at 62–63.

12 Lord Igor, Singapore Academy of Law Annual Lecture 2012 – 'The Art of Advocacy' (2013) 25 SAdLJ 1 at [16].

own life experiences,<sup>13</sup> and decisions are made through this same lens. These perceptions are, in turn, shaped by factors such as age, gender, place of birth, social and educational background, training, work experience and culture.<sup>14</sup> Culture is ‘the shared knowledge and schemes created and used by a set of people for perceiving, interpreting, expressing, and responding to the social realities around them’.<sup>15</sup> In other words, in coming to their decisions, arbitrators, like any other persons, rely on their ‘sense’ of how things ought to be, and such ‘sense’ is shaped by the cultural and social groups to which they belong.<sup>16</sup> People tend to focus on information that accords with their existing beliefs, and they assess information positively if it is consistent with those beliefs and negatively if it discredits them.<sup>17</sup>

Where tribunal members, advocates and witnesses hail from different backgrounds (as is often the case for international arbitrations), the cultural diversity makes the process of persuading the tribunal complex and often difficult. For example, a tribunal’s assessment of the level of competence expected of a director of a company may vary depending on each tribunal member’s expectations of competency.<sup>18</sup> Even when all the participants to the arbitration are Asian, effective advocacy is by no means an easy task – Asia is a vast, disparate region that is home to a myriad of different countries, cultures, religions, races, languages and legal traditions.<sup>19</sup>

Developing an advocacy strategy before an Asian tribunal

This section discusses what an advocate can consider and do when appearing before a tribunal consisting predominantly of Asian members, who are perhaps not cut from the traditional ‘international arbitrator’ cloth.

Know your tribunal

Where an arbitration involves arbitrators and advocates from different cultures, issues may arise from the inevitable differences in communication methods, meaning of communications, mental interpretations and behavioural expectations. For example, ex parte communications with arbitrators are generally prohibited in Western countries, but it is not uncommon in jurisdictions such as China, where an arbitrator may also take on the role of a mediator in the same dispute.<sup>20</sup> The Hong Kong Court of Appeal had granted leave to enforce a China-seated award (and dismissed a challenge on grounds of bias) where an

---

13 Masua Sagiv, ‘Cultural Bias in Judicial Decision Making,’ (2015) 35 BCJL & Soc Just 229 at 232.

14 Greg Loughton SC, ‘Advocacy in International Arbitration’, Selborne Chambers at [29]; Jos Hornikx, ‘Chapter 4: Cultural Differences in Perceptions of Strong and Weak Arguments’, in Tony Cole, The Roles of Psychology in International Arbitration (Kluwer Law International; Kluwer Law International 2017) at 75.

15 Lederach J. P., Preparing for peace: Conflict transformation across cultures (Syracuse University Press, 1995) at 9.

16 Masua Sagiv, ‘Cultural Bias in Judicial Decision Making’, (2015) 35 BCJL & Soc Just 229 at 232–235.

17 Jos Hornikx, ‘Cultural Differences in Perceptions of Strong and Weak Arguments’ in The Roles of Psychology in International Arbitration (Kluwer Law International, 2017) at 88–90.

18 See e.g., Won Kidane, ‘Chapter 12 – Conversations on the Role of Culture in International Arbitration’ in The Culture of International Arbitration (Oxford University Press, 2017) at 275.

19 Patrizia Anesa, ‘Arbitration discourse across cultures: Asian perspectives’, (2017) 13 ESP Across Cultures 19 at 20–21.

20 Sundaresh Menon, ‘Some Cautionary Notes for an Age of Opportunity’ (Keynote address at the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators Arbitration Conference, Penang, 22 August 2013) at [6]; Catherine Rogers, ‘Fit and arbitrator conducted mediation over a private dinner with (and paid for by) one party in the absence of the other, on the basis that such a practice was found to be acceptable by the courts of the arbitral seat.<sup>21</sup> Differences can even be seen from something as seemingly minor as deciding how long the tribunal should sit for a day or perhaps on which days to sit. For instance, considerable deference should be made to avoid a hearing over noon on a Friday where one of the arbitrators is a Muslim. Equally, a hearing over the Ramadan month should perhaps also be avoided, where possible. Similar caution should be borne in mind when scheduling hearings close to major festivals in Asian countries, for instance, the Golden Week in China or the Lebaran festival in Indonesia.

Accordingly, effective arbitration advocacy starts with getting to know the members that make up the tribunal and understanding their likely attitudes and beliefs, and how these attitudes and beliefs might be changed if necessary. With this understanding, an advocate can frame his or her arguments and develop a targeted presentation of the case that will resonate with the tribunal members and motivate them to decide in his or her favour.<sup>22</sup> For instance, a retired Asian judge from a more formal national court structure sitting as an arbitrator may be more comfortable conducting proceedings in a manner not too dissimilar to his or her former environs. A good advocate must therefore be prepared for such cultural differences, which perhaps may not represent the international norms that he or she is used to.

An advocate's job to persuade can perhaps be made easier through the thoughtful selection and nomination of an arbitrator with the desired understanding of the legal and business culture for the case at hand. Since it is safe to assume that arbitrators talk to each other about the case during arbitration and deliberations, such an arbitrator can play the role of a 'cultural intermediary and translator'<sup>23</sup> by explaining the social and cultural intricacies relevant to the dispute (the understanding of which may be helpful or even essential to the advocate's case) that the other members of the tribunal might otherwise be unable to comprehend because of inexperience or lack of knowledge. A civil law arbitrator may, for instance, be better placed to understand the business law norms of an Indonesian or Japanese party.

It is not the intention of this chapter to explore the precise differences in communication and behavioural norms that exist between arbitration participants from different cultures. However, we will briefly discuss a few points that an advocate can usefully take note of.

---

Function in Legal Ethics: Developing a Code of Conduct for International Arbitration', 23 Michigan Journal of International Law 341 at 363.

21 Gao Haiyan v. Keeneye Holdings Ltd. & New Purple Golden Resources Development Ltd [2011] HKCA 459 at [102].

22 Richard Waites & James Lawrence, 'Psychological Dynamics in International Arbitration', in Doak Bishop & Edward G. Kehoe (Eds.), The Art of Advocacy in International Arbitration, 2nd Ed (JurisNet, 2010) at 73–75.

23 Ilhyung Lee, 'Practice and Predicament: The Nationality of the International Arbitrator (With Survey Results)', (2007) 31 Fordham International Law Journal 603 at 604.

How to cross-examine Chinese speakers

Anyone who has taken part in advocacy trainings on cross-examination has been taught to ask questions that call for short, yes-or-no type answers. This type of questioning, however, often tends to be less effective when it comes to Chinese witnesses. Chinese people tend to be less direct than Westerners, and will frequently express themselves in a roundabout way instead of using explicit language. Pressing the witness to answer the question will rarely help, and might come across as rude or inappropriate in the eyes of Chinese arbitrators. Western lawyers cross-examining Chinese witnesses should, therefore, be prepared to ask the same questions from different angles, consider asking more open-ended questions, and be prepared to leave markers for the transcript in circumstances where a line of questioning fails to achieve the desired result. Another frequent difficulty arises from the complexity of the Chinese language, which almost invariably results in difficulties of interpretation during cross-examination. Speaking slowly is therefore essential, and it might sometimes be advisable to consider consecutive, rather than simultaneous interpretation.

– Emmanuel Jacomy, Shearman & Sterling LLP

Language

Where the language of the arbitration is English but English is not the first language for one or more participants, or where the participants have varying proficiencies in the language, it is necessary for the advocate to tailor his or her written or spoken communications to ensure that such communications are capable of being understood by everyone involved. In such situations, an advocate may wish to adopt clear, simple and concise language without colloquialisms, while at the same time ensuring that the language used is not so basic as to lose the interest of the arbitrator whose first language is English.<sup>24</sup> Conversely, where the arbitrator's first language is not English, the advocate would do well to ensure that his or her oral submissions are clearly understood.

An advocate also has to be cognisant of the fact that translations are rarely perfect – words spoken by a native English speaker may not have the same meaning once translated into another language, and vice versa. With the rise of cross-border arbitration involving international parties, being conversant in multiple languages or having an advocate on your team with such linguistic capabilities can only be an advantage.

Technical language proficiency aside, the manner in which people communicate, both verbal and non-verbal, is different across cultures, notwithstanding the fact that they might be speaking the same language. Words, facial expressions, body language and gestures can be interpreted differently between people of different cultures. This is particularly the case for South Asians, where a shake of the head by a witness may mean an affirmation of a point rather than a denial. Further, something as simple as a wave of the palm can carry multiple meanings, and can be read in a different manner depending on the culture the witness belongs to.

---

24 Greg Laughton SC, 'Advocacy in International Arbitration', Selborne Chambers at [60].

Style and tone of communication

Apart from language, an advocate should also be aware of the cultural sensitivities of the tribunal members and tailor the style and tone of his or her communications accordingly, to maximise the persuasiveness of his or her message.

For example, an American litigation lawyer who is used to advocating before lay juries in the US courts may subconsciously advocate his or her case in an international arbitration with the same level of aggressiveness as in an adversarial system. Accustomed to oral depositions of witnesses where the 'goal often is to create . . . short snippets of testimony in the form of admissions that can be inserted into summary judgment papers . . . to show the presence or absence of factual issues',<sup>25</sup> he or she may also carry over the same aggressive, accusatory questioning style when cross-examining witnesses in international arbitration. This would not be well received by an East Asian civil law arbitrator used to an inquisitorial and conciliatory approach, and who, because of social conventions influenced by Taoist or Confucian precepts that define how East Asians behave and communicate,<sup>26</sup> is sensitive to behaviour that implicitly diminishes the position of the recipient and results in a loss of face.<sup>27</sup> Where one or more members of the tribunal hails from an East Asian jurisdiction, an advocate may wish to consider adopting a measured and neutral tone in his or her communications, while explaining the case in a clear, concise, accurate, reasoned and authoritative way.

An East Asian arbitrator also may not appreciate a zealous and aggressive cross-examination of an elderly Asian witness. Deference and courtesy are important, expected behavioural norms for an advocate who wishes to command the respect of an Asian arbitrator.

Similarly, an East Asian arbitrator may not favour the arguments of an advocate who is not alive to the nuances of the 'high-context' (i.e., with much of the meaning derived from the background culture and left unsaid) communication style of an East Asian witness (as opposed to Western 'low-context' communication styles, which are generally more explicit) and who, as a result, relies on the witness' apparent reticence as evidence of a lack of credibility.<sup>28</sup>

An advocate therefore has to be mindful of and sensitive to cultural differences in his or her communications and behaviour during the arbitration, so as not to offend any arbitrators and other participants to the arbitration and detract from the persuasiveness of his or her arguments.

Role of mediation/conciliation

An international arbitration advocate should also be aware of and prepared for the importance of mediation and conciliation in some Asian cultures, and their influence on the arbitration process. As a result of the influence of Confucian values and principles in some

---

25 Doak Bishop & James Carter, 'The United States Perspective and Practice of Advocacy', in Doak Bishop & Edward G. Kehoe (Eds.), The Art of Advocacy in International Arbitration, 2nd Ed (JurisNet, 2010) 519 at 521.

26 Christopher Lau, 'The Asian Perspective and Practice of Advocacy', in Doak Bishop & Edward G. Kehoe (Eds.), The Art of Advocacy in International Arbitration, 2nd Ed (JurisNet, 2010) at 567.

27 Patrizia Anesa, 'Arbitration discourse across cultures: Asian perspectives', (2017) 13 ESP Across Cultures 19 at 22.

28 Theodore Cheng, 'Developing Skills to Address Cultural Issues in Arbitration and Mediation' (2017) 72(3) Dispute Resolution Journal 1 at 2.

East Asian cultures, non-confrontational methods of conflict resolution (such as mediation and conciliation)<sup>29</sup> have historically been the preferred methods of dispute resolution in countries such as China<sup>30</sup> and Japan,<sup>31</sup> and are still ingrained in their legal cultures. This can be seen in the arbitration laws and rules of arbitration institutions from these countries. For example, the arbitration laws and rules from China, Hong Kong and Japan contain specific provisions for conciliation, mediation and settlement to be conducted by the arbitral tribunal, and for the tribunal to render an award in terms of the settlement.<sup>32</sup> Arbitral tribunals comprised of Chinese or Japanese arbitrators may therefore expect or even request parties to attempt to mediate and reconcile their differences before the substantive hearing; it is a widely held perception among Chinese arbitrators that it is the goal of the arbitrator to ensure that parties are able to preserve their long-term relationship.<sup>33</sup> Advocates who appear unprepared for or unwilling to attempt reconciliatory measures may be perceived as insincere and disrespectful towards the dispute resolution process.

Know the opportunities for persuasion

Besides knowing the tribunal, it is also important for an advocate to recognise that advocacy is not just about oral or written submissions at the merits hearing. An arbitrator's decision-making process starts from the time of his or her appointment, as that is when he or she starts to evaluate and assess the parties, their advocates and the information presented. While written and oral submissions represent the two most obvious opportunities for advocacy in international arbitration, every action taken, and every contact with, statement made to or document submitted to the tribunal, at every stage of the arbitration represents an avenue for persuasion, and should be made with the ultimate aim of instilling confidence in one's case and the result sought in the tribunal.<sup>34</sup> This is particularly the case for arbitrations involving Asian parties and arbitrators.

Even though parties to an arbitration generally agree (failing which, the tribunal would direct) on the arbitration rules that lay out the basic procedure for the arbitration, differences in the individual legal traditions and practices of advocates and arbitrators still often give rise to different expectations of how these rules are to be applied and followed. While the many differences between the legal traditions and practices of different countries cannot be oversimplified, there are striking differences between the two approaches upon which most legal systems are based – that is, common law and civil law. An international

---

29 Patrizia Anesa, 'Arbitration discourse across cultures: Asian perspective's, (2017) 13 ESP Across Cultures 19 at 22.

30 Gabrielle Kaufmann-Kohler & Fan Kun, 'Integrating Mediation into Arbitration: Why It Works in China' (2008) 25(4) Journal of International Arbitration 479 at 480.

31 Tony Cole, 'Commercial Arbitration in Japan – Contributions to the Debate on Japanese "Non-Litigiousness"' (2007) 40(1) New York University Journal of International Law and Politics 29 at 59–63.

32 See, for example, Section 33 of the Hong Kong Arbitration Ordinance; Article 36 of the HKIAC Administered Arbitration Rules 2013; Article 47 of the CIETAC Arbitration Rules; Article 38 of the Japanese Arbitration Law; and Article 43 of the Arbitration Rules of the Beijing Arbitration Commission 2015.

33 Shahla Ali, 'Approaching the Global Arbitration Table: Comparing the Advantages of Arbitration as Seen by Practitioners in East Asia and the West', (2009) 28(4) Review of Litigation 735 at 784.

34 Peter Leaver & Henry Forbes Smith, 'The British Perspective and Practice of Advocacy' in Doak Bishop & Edward G. Kehoe (Eds.), The Art of Advocacy in International Arbitration, 2nd Ed (JurisNet, 2010) at 474.

arbitration advocate seeking to persuade members of a tribunal from different legal systems would be well advised to keep these differences in mind when formulating a persuasion strategy.

Pleadings

While pleadings are an essential part of every arbitration and institutional arbitration rules provide for the submission of such documents setting out each party's case, there is no fixed precept in international arbitration on (and the institutional rules often do not stipulate) how detailed a party's pleadings must be. Some arbitrators and advocates would be used to and may prefer a concise document setting out central propositions of fact and law on which the party relies, while others may expect a full statement of a party's case, complete with all the particulars and evidence supporting it.<sup>35</sup> An advocate therefore has to take into account the background and likely preferences of the members of the tribunal in deciding the level of detail of the pleadings, so as to ensure that the party's case is effectively conveyed and easily understood.

An arbitrator from an Asian jurisdiction with a common law heritage (likely to be inherited from the British) would perhaps be more accustomed to exhaustive pleadings than an arbitrator from a background where pleadings play a less important role.

Documentary evidence

One can expect a party to voluntarily disclose all documents on which it relies and that are necessary to support its case. But what about relevant documents that a party chooses not to disclose, perhaps because they are unhelpful to its case? Common law arbitrators and advocates would be familiar with applications and orders for document production to compel a party to search for and produce these documents; however, this practice may not be palatable to Asian civil law arbitrators and advocates, since with their legal background, parties are generally under no obligation to disclose documents within their possession or control that are unhelpful to their case, and civil law courts in Asia generally refuse to assist with such applications.<sup>36</sup>

While the IBA Rules on the Taking of Evidence in International Arbitration aim to balance common and civil law approaches in respect of document disclosure, it has been observed that the extent to which production of documents is granted is still unpredictable and differs from case to case.<sup>37</sup> This is certainly true in Asia.

---

35 Nikola S. Georgiev, Cultural differences or cultural clash? The future of International Commercial Arbitration (School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London, 2012) at 13–14.

36 See, e.g., Anna Magdalena Kubalczyk, 'Evidentiary Rules in International Arbitration – A Comparative Analysis of Approaches and the Need for Regulation' (2015) 3(1), Groningen Journal of International Law 85 at 93; Craig Wagnild, 'Civil Law Discovery in Japan: A Comparison of Japanese and US Methods of Evidence Collection in Civil Litigation' (Winter 2002) 3(1), Asian-Pacific Law & Policy Journal 1 at 16; Qifan Cui, 'Document Production in Chinese Litigation and International Arbitration' (2011) 6(2), Journal of Cambridge Studies 69 at 73.

37 Pierre Karrer, 'The Civil Law and Common Law Divide: An International Arbitrator Tells It Like He Sees It' in AAA Handbook on International Arbitration and ADR, 2nd Ed (JurisNet, 2010) at 53–54.

An advocate should, therefore, take into account the legal background of the members of the tribunal in deciding how best to pitch an application for document disclosure, and the scope of disclosure sought. For example, an Asian civil law arbitrator may view a request for a wide-ranging discovery order to be a redundant and inefficient exercise that slows down the arbitral process, and be less inclined to grant it. The submissions would therefore have to be tailored to take into account such sensitivities.

Witness evidence

It is fairly standard practice in international arbitrations for parties to tender statements from their witnesses prior to the substantive main hearing. However, cultural differences may give rise to different expectations on the scope and content required in such statements. Asian civil law advocates and arbitrators may expect witness statements to simply set out a short summary of the evidence or topics on which the witness may address the tribunal at the hearing, with the witness to give evidence beyond the statement during the hearing;<sup>38</sup> whereas common law advocates and arbitrators may expect witness statements to cover every point in issue and contain everything the witness has to say. Where there is ambiguity on the expected scope and content of witness statements, an advocate in an international arbitration may wish to seek the tribunal's directions on this issue so that he or she can prepare the witness statements in the form that would be most persuasive to the tribunal.

One thing an advocate should note when dealing with witnesses from Asian countries where business cultures are heavily influenced by Confucian ideals (such as China, Japan and Korea) is the importance and impact of hierarchy in business organisations. In these countries, junior employees may not feel comfortable disagreeing with someone of a higher level in the business hierarchy, and may in fact go out of their way to ensure that their recollections are consistent with their more senior colleagues. As observed by a senior arbitration practitioner, the junior employee does this not out of a desire to be dishonest, but because of a perceived duty to support and be loyal to one's superiors, such that if the junior employee's account is inconsistent with that of a more senior employee, the more senior employee must be right.<sup>39</sup> An advocate should be aware of this possibility when confronted with consistent accounts that seem too good to be true, and when dealing with his or her own witnesses, take the necessary steps to pre-empt the probability that the truth would be revealed in cross-examination during the substantive hearing.

---

38 Anthony Sinclair, 'Differences in the Approach to Witness Evidence between the Civil and Common law traditions', in Doak Bishop & Edward G. Kehoe (Eds.), The Art of Advocacy in International Arbitration, 2nd Ed (JurisNet, 2010) at 34–35.

39 Christopher K Tahbaz, 'Cross-Cultural Perspectives on Effective Advocacy in International Arbitration – or, How to Avoid Losing in Translation' (2012) 14(2), Asian Dispute Review 51 at 52.

Use of experts

A good advocate should be aware that whether a tribunal considers an expert to be reliable or qualified may depend on culture-driven expectations of each tribunal member, and this should therefore be a factor to be taken into consideration when selecting experts.<sup>40</sup>

In recent years, arbitral tribunals in Asia have increasingly adopted the practice of witness conferencing or ‘hot-tubbing’ as the preferred method of expert evidence presentation. As with general cross-examination, even when posing questions to an Asian witness, an advocate should keep in mind the Asian sensitivity to ‘loss of face’ and not be overly aggressive in his or her questioning. Some Asian experts can be fairly modest and less participative when engaged in a witness-conferencing session and a good advocate would have to be astute to ensure that his or her expert’s effectiveness is not diminished because of a cultural disposition.

Concluding remarks

‘A good lawyer knows the law, but a great lawyer knows the judge.’ While this phrase is often used in a humorous manner to depict the legal profession, it encapsulates one essential quality of a good advocate, which is to understand the attitudes and beliefs of the decision makers. As highlighted in this chapter, an advocate in an international arbitration involving participants with different cultures in Asia should go beyond that and seek to understand not just the members of the tribunal, but all the participants, including witnesses and opposing counsel. Only then can an advocate develop a persuasion strategy that is truly effective.

---

40 Jos Hornikx, ‘Cultural Differences in Perceptions of Strong and Weak Arguments’ in The Roles of Psychology in International Arbitration (Kluwer Law International, 2017) at 92.

Appendix 1

The Contributing Authors

Alvin Yeo SC

WongPartnership LLP

Mr Alvin Yeo is Singapore's foremost arbitration counsel in the field of investor–state disputes and international commercial arbitration; he has acted for and advised international clients in complex, cross-border disputes and multi-jurisdictional enforcement proceedings.

His extensive experience also covers financial disputes, contentious investigations, insolvency and restructuring, and financial services regulatory matters, including corporate fraud, anti-money laundering and insider trading.

Chambers Global describes Mr Yeo as 'the most impressive, as an advocate, out of all the Singapore firms'. Chambers Asia-Pacific 2017 has said that Mr Yeo 'provides leadership on SIAC and ICC proceedings'. Who's Who Legal: Arbitration 2017 lauded Mr Yeo as 'a leading light in the market who possesses strong arbitration credentials and experience'.

He is recognised as a leading litigation and arbitration counsel in international legal directories such as Chambers Asia-Pacific, Chambers Global, IFLR1000, and The Legal 500: Asia Pacific.

Mr Yeo is a member of the Court of the SIAC, the ICC Commission and a fellow of the Singapore Institute of Arbitrators and the Singapore Institute of Directors. He is the vice president of the LCIA Asia Pacific Users' Council and sits on the panel of arbitrators in Hong Kong International Arbitration Centre, International Centre for Dispute Resolution, Korean Commercial Arbitration Board, Kuala Lumpur Regional Centre for Arbitration, South China International Economic Trade Arbitration Commission and Singapore Institute of Arbitrators' Panel for Sports in Singapore.

Chou Sean Yu

WongPartnership LLP

Mr Chou Sean Yu is a partner in the international arbitration practice at WongPartnership LLP. He is also the head of the banking and financial disputes practice, the joint head of the restructuring and insolvency practice and a partner in the financial services regulatory and the Malaysia practices.

Mr Chou's main areas of practice are domestic and international litigation and arbitration work, with particular expertise in banking and trade finance disputes, commercial and corporate disputes, insolvency and restructuring, corporate fraud, investigations and asset recovery, shareholder litigation and tort and contractual claims.

The Legal 500: Asia Pacific describes Mr Chou as a 'thorough and well prepared' practitioner. His clients have lauded 'his excellent legal knowledge and competence', adding that 'his good commercial thinking allows him to appreciate the commercial aspects of complex business issues and provide holistic advice to clients that goes beyond just legal considerations'.

He is also recognised as a leading lawyer for international arbitration in Best Lawyers 2017 and endorsed as a recommended restructuring and insolvency lawyer in The Legal 500: Asia Pacific 2016 and a leading restructuring and insolvency lawyer in Best Lawyers 2017.

Mr Chou is a fellow of the Insolvency Practitioners Association of Singapore and is on the Panel of Arbitrators of the Singapore International Arbitration Centre (SIAC), the Korean Commercial Arbitration Board (KCAB) and the Kuala Lumpur Regional Centre of Arbitration (KLRCA). He is also a fellow of the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators and current chairman of the board of its Singapore branch.

WongPartnership LLP

12 Marina Boulevard Level 28
Marina Bay Financial Centre Tower 3
Singapore 018982
Tel: +65 6416 8000
Fax: +65 6532 5711 / 5722
alvin.yeo@wongpartnership.com
seanyu.chou@wongpartnership.com
www.wongpartnership.com

Appendix 2

The Contributing Arbitrators

Emmanuel Jacomy

Shearman & Sterling LLP

Emmanuel Jacomy is a partner in the international arbitration group of Shearman & Sterling, based in Beijing and Singapore. He has extensive experience acting as an arbitrator and counsel advising companies, governments and state-owned entities in international commercial and investment treaty arbitrations, with a particular focus on investment, oil and gas, energy and mining disputes, as well as disputes having an Asian nexus. He is a visiting lecturer at Tsinghua University and the National University of Singapore, and regularly appears as a speaker on issues of investment arbitration and international commercial arbitration.

Shearman & Sterling LLP

Unit 3209, China Central Place Tower 2

79 Jianguo Road, Chaoyang District

Beijing 100025

China

Tel: +86 10 5922 8000 /

+86 10 5922 8109

Fax: +86 10 6563 6000

emmanuel.jacomy@shearman.com

www.shearman.com

Visit globalarbitrationreview.com
Follow @garalerts on Twitter
Find us on LinkedIn

ISBN 978-1-78915-096-4