

Global Arbitration Review

The Guide to Advocacy

---

Editors

Stephen Jagusch QC, Philippe Pinsolle and Alexander G Leventhal

Fifth Edition

The Guide to Advocacy

Fifth Edition

Editors

Stephen Jagusch QC

Philippe Pinsolle

Alexander G Leventhal

Reproduced with permission from Law Business Research Ltd

This article was first published in September 2021

For further information please contact Natalie.Clarke@lbresearch.com

Publisher

David Samuels

Business Development Manager

Samuel Romp

Editorial Coordinator

Hannah Higgins

Head of Content Production

Simon Busby

Copy-editor

Tessa Brummitt

Proofreader

Caroline Fewkes

Published in the United Kingdom

by Law Business Research Ltd, London

Meridian House, 34-35 Farringdon Street, London, EC4A 4HL, UK

© 2021 Law Business Research Ltd

www.globalarbitrationreview.com

No photocopying: copyright licences do not apply.

The information provided in this publication is general and may not apply in a specific situation, nor does it necessarily represent the views of authors' firms or their clients.

Legal advice should always be sought before taking any legal action based on the information provided. The publishers accept no responsibility for any acts or omissions contained herein. Although the information provided was accurate as at July 2021, be advised that this is a developing area.

Enquiries concerning reproduction should be sent to Law Business Research, at the address above. Enquiries concerning editorial content should be directed to the Publisher – David.Samuels@lbresearch.com

ISBN 978-1-83862-574-0

Printed in Great Britain by Encompass Print Solutions, Derbyshire
Tel: 0844 2480 112

Acknowledgements

The publisher acknowledges and thanks the following for their learned assistance throughout the preparation of this book:

3 VERULAM BUILDINGS

39 ESSEX CHAMBERS

ALEXIS MOURRE INDEPENDENT ARBITRATOR

ALVAREZ & MARSAL

ARBITRATION CHAMBERS

BÄR & KARRER

BIRD & BIRD

BRICK COURT CHAMBERS

CABINET YVES FORTIER

CAIRO REGIONAL CENTRE FOR INTERNATIONAL COMMERCIAL ARBITRATION

CLEARY GOTTlieb STEEN & HAMILTON LLP

CMS HASCHE SIGLE

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW

DEBEVOISE & PLIMPTON LLP

DERAINS & GHARAVI

DR COLIN ONG LEGAL SERVICES

Acknowledgements

ELEONORA COELHO ADVOGADOS

ESSEX COURT CHAMBERS

EVERSHEDS SUTHERLAND

FCDG – FERRO, CASTRO NEVES, DALTRO & GOMIDE ADVOGADOS

FRESHFIELDS BRUCKHAUS DERINGER LLP

GALICIA ABOGADOS

GEORGE A BERMANN

HANESSIAN ADR, LLC

HANOTIAU & VAN DEN BERG

HENDEL IDR

HERBERT SMITH FREEHILLS

HUGHES HUBBARD & REED LLP

KIAP ATTORNEYS AT LAW

KING & SPALDING

LONDON COURT OF INTERNATIONAL ARBITRATION

MICHAEL HWANG CHAMBERS LLC

MOHAMED MAHAYNI

MORRILADR

OBEID LAW FIRM

ONE ESSEX COURT

ORRICK HERRINGTON & SUTCLIFFE LLP

PETER & KIM

QUINN EMANUEL URQUHART & SULLIVAN LLP

Acknowledgements

ROBERT H SMIT INDEPENDENT ARBITRATOR

SCHWARTZ ARBITRATION

SHARDUL AMARCHAND MANGALDAS & CO

SHEARMAN & STERLING LLP

SIDLEY AUSTIN LLP

STANIMIR A ALEXANDROV PLLC

SYDNEY ARBITRATION CHAMBERS

AL TAMIMI & COMPANY

TEMPLARS

THREE CROWNS LLP

TWENTY ESSEX CHAMBERS

VANCOUVER ARBITRATION CHAMBERS

VIEIRA DE ALMEIDA

VON SEGESSER LAW OFFICES

WHITE & CASE

WILLIAM LAURENCE CRAIG INDEPENDENT ARBITRATOR

WILMER CUTLER PICKERING HALE AND DORR LLP

WONGPARTNERSHIP LLP

ZAID MAHAYNI

Contents

Publisher's Note.....	ix
Index to Arbitrators' Comments.....	xi
Introduction .....	1
Stephen Jagusch QC, Philippe Pinsolle and Alexander G Leventhal
1 Case Strategy and Preparation for Effective Advocacy .....	3
Colin Ong QC
2 Written Advocacy .....	20
Thomas K Sprange QC
3 The Initial Hearing .....	38
Grant Hanessian
4 Opening Submissions .....	52
Franz T Schwarz
5 Direct and Re-Direct Examination.....	70
Anne Véronique Schlaepfer and Vanessa Alarcón Duvanel
6 Cross-Examination of Fact Witnesses: The Civil Law Perspective.....	85
Philippe Pinsolle
7 Cross-Examination of Fact Witnesses: The Common Law Perspective .....	96
Stephen Jagusch QC

Contents

8	Cross-Examination of Experts .....	110
	David Roney
9	The Role of the Expert in Advocacy .....	130
	Luke Steadman
10	Closing Arguments .....	140
	Hilary Heilbron QC and Klaus Reichert SC
11	Tips for Second-Chairing an Oral Argument.....	155
	Tunde Oyewole
12	Advocacy in Virtual Hearings.....	164
	Kap-You (Kevin) Kim, John P Bang and Mino Han
13	Cultural Considerations in Advocacy: East Meets West .....	173
	Alvin Yeo SC and Chou Sean Yu
14	Cultural Considerations in Advocacy: United States .....	185
	Amal Bouchenaki
15	Cultural Considerations in Advocacy: Spanish-Speaking Latin America .....	198
	Paola Aldrete, Ana Sofía Mosqueda and Cecilia Azar
16	Cultural Considerations in Advocacy in Latin America: Brazil .....	205
	Karina Goldberg
17	Cultural Considerations in Advocacy: English-Speaking Africa .....	212
	Stanley U Nweke-Eze
18	Cultural Considerations in Advocacy: French-Speaking Africa.....	218
	Wesley Pydiamah and Manuel Tomas
19	Cultural Considerations in Advocacy: Portuguese-Speaking Africa .....	224
	Rui Andrade and Catarina Carvalho Cunha

Contents

20	Cultural Considerations in Advocacy: Continental Europe .....	231
	Torsten Lörcher
21	Cultural Considerations in Advocacy: Russia and Eastern Europe.....	244
	Anna Grishchenkova
22	Cultural Considerations in Advocacy: The Arab World .....	256
	Zaid Mahayni and Mohamed Mahayni
23	Cultural Considerations in Advocacy: India.....	274
	Tejas Karia and Rishab Gupta
24	Advocacy against an Absent Adversary .....	280
	John M Townsend and James H Boykin
25	Advocacy in Investment Treaty Arbitration.....	291
	Tai-Heng Cheng and Simón Navarro González
26	Advocacy in Construction Arbitration .....	301
	James Bremen and Elizabeth Wilson
27	Advocacy in International Sport Arbitration.....	312
	James H Carter
28	Arbitration Advocacy and Criminal Matters: The Arbitration Advocate as Master of Strategy .....	325
	Juan P Morillo, Gabriel F Soledad and Alexander G Leventhal
	The Contributing Authors.....	341
	The Contributing Arbitrators.....	361
	Contact Details.....	383
	Index.....	393

Publisher's Note

Global Arbitration Review is delighted to publish this new edition of The Guide to Advocacy.

For those new to Global Arbitration Review (GAR), we are the online home for international arbitration specialists, telling them all they need to know about everything that matters.

Most know us for our daily news and analysis. But we also provide more in-depth content: including books like this one; regional reviews; conferences with a bit of flair to them; and time-saving workflow tools. Visit us at www.globalarbitrationreview.com to find out more.

As the unofficial 'official journal' of international arbitration, sometimes we spot gaps in the literature. At other times people point them out to us. That was the case with advocacy and international arbitration. We are indebted to editors Philippe Pinsolle and Stephen Jagusch for having spotted the gap and suggesting we cooperate on something.

The Guide to Advocacy is the result.

It aims to provide those newer to international arbitration with the tools to succeed as an advocate, whatever their national origin, and to provide the more experienced with insight into cultural and regional variations. In its short lifetime it has grown beyond either GAR's or the editors' original conception. One of the reasons for its success are the 'arbitrator boxes' – see the Index to Arbitrator's Comments on page ix if you don't know what I mean) – wherein arbitrators, many of whom have been advocates themselves, share their wisdom and war stories, and divulge what advocacy techniques work from their perspective. We have some pretty remarkable names (and are always on the look out for more – so please do share this open invitation to get in touch with anyone who has impressed you).

Alas since the last edition we lost one of those remarkable names with the passing of Stephen Bond (1943–2020). Steve was a former head of the ICC and of White & Case's international arbitration team, and a refreshingly clear-eyed thinker. As with Emmanuel Gaillard in 2021, the world of international arbitration was suddenly much poorer when he went. I would urge those who have not seen the two GAR pieces published in commemoration to look them up.<sup>1</sup> One of the things that comes across strongly is how much Steve loved to teach, in his own fashion. With that in mind we thought it would be fitting to preserve his arbitrator boxes for the benefit of future generations. So you will still see his name appearing throughout.

---

<sup>1</sup> <https://globalarbitrationreview.com/tributes-stephen-bond>; <https://globalarbitrationreview.com/stephen-bond-1943-2020>.

Publisher's Note

We hope you find the guide useful. If you do, you may be interested in some of the other books in the GAR Guides series, which have the same tone. They cover energy, construction, M&A, and mining disputes and (from later this year) evidence, and investor–state disputes, in the same unique, practical way. We also have a guide to assessing damages, and a citation manual (Universal Citation in International Arbitration - UCLA). You will find all of them in e-form on our site, with hard copies available to buy if you aren't already a subscriber.

My thanks to our editors Stephen Jagusch QC, Philippe Pinsolle and Alexander G Leventhal for their vision and editorial oversight, to our exceptional contributors for the energy they have put into bringing it to life, and to my colleagues in our production team for achieving such a polished work. And also to practitioners Neville Byford, Stephen Fietta and Sean Upson ('The Role of the Expert in Advocacy') and Flore Poloni and Kabir Duggal ('Tips for Second Chairing an Oral Argument') for giving us extra material to enrich those chapters.

David Samuels

Publisher, GAR

August 2021

Index to Arbitrators' Comments

Stanimir A Alexandrov

A request for arbitration should tell a compelling story.....	29
Don't forget motive .....	31
In post-hearing submissions, cover what the tribunal really wants to know .....	32
Be reasonable!.....	41
Set backup hearing dates at the same time as the rest of the calendar .....	46
Avoid bombast.....	55
Address weaknesses before you reach the hearing.....	60
You can postpone answering a tribunal's question – but not indefinitely .....	62
The value of direct examination .....	73
To re-direct or not to re-direct?: 'It's best to be very cautious'.....	82
Avoid harassing or needlessly embarrassing a witness .....	88
On cross-examining legal experts.....	117
On hot-tubbing: 'Approach expert conferencing with caution'.....	125
Closing arguments must answer the tribunal's questions.....	148
You are the key to smoothness and efficiency.....	158
Reinforce – don't distract – with PowerPoint.....	168
The critical difference is transparency .....	297

Henri Alvarez QC

General rules for written advocacy.....	24
Some general rules on how to make a better first impression.....	49

David Bateson

A good example of cultural differences – traits of Asian witnesses .....	181
Expect assertive case management.....	303

George A Bermann

A missed opportunity ..... 73
Experts can make or break a case .....128
Experts win cases.....132
The tribunal will be deeply aware of its need for a road map .....142
The presence of a sovereign state alters a proceeding .....293

Juliet Blanch

Wherever possible, simplify ..... 22
'An initial hearing is generally worth the investment' ..... 39
Opening submissions – some tips..... 53
Only re-direct when critical ..... 82
The lesson from the two most effective cross-examinations I've seen .....100
When a witness refuses to answer.....104
Do not over-prepare your witness .....108
You must become an expert too .....114
The closing shouldn't be a repeat .....149

†Stephen Bond

I had over-egged the pudding ..... 25
Rather than filing it, send it to the respondent ..... 30
How to deal with clear untruths ..... 90
Civil law arbitrators and cross-examination – a conundrum..... 90
The importance of a competent expert cannot be overstated.....131
Default victories don't exist .....286

Stavros Brekoulakis

Make sure the tribunal knows where you are heading ..... 87
Sharing the advocacy with juniors shows confidence in your case .....160
Trust the tribunal.....281
Build your case around the evidence, not the other way around .....305

Charles N Brower

The arbitration clause – stick or twist? ..... 8
Find a short sentence that frames your case simply ..... 33
How to prepare a witness statement – properly ..... 77
Smoking guns are not a myth .....239
Listen, especially to your own witnesses .....298
If an obvious witness is missing, expect us to ask .....298

Eleonora Coelho

Show arbitrators you are not afraid of the facts, even unwelcome ones.....207

Nayla Comair-Obeid

The more detailed the procedural rules, the better.....257

Beware misunderstandings .....257

William Laurence Craig

The contract is the law of the parties ..... 23

Yves Derains

Address embarrassing facts in direct examination..... 75

You will have to adapt to the arbitrators' culture – particularly the chair's .....219

Advice for civil lawyers on how to re-direct.....241

Don't give the arbitrators an excuse to become opposing counsel.....288

Donald Francis Donovan

Always be advocating..... 44

Cartoons, films and non-traditional sources are okay ..... 67

Cross-examination is about command..... 97

Above all, engage .....102

Closing argument should do just that – close down.....141

Yves Fortier QC

Speak to your target arbitrator as if one to one ..... 54

You cannot over-prepare..... 58

Sometimes, the best option is to get under the witness's skin .....105

Set an expert to catch an expert.....112

Oral closing arguments – a rarity .....143

Andrew Foyle

Time limits and oral openings..... 61

Pierre-Yves Gunter

The advantages of an oral closing.....150

Cultural considerations – some examples .....276

Jackie van Haersolte-van Hof

Pick up on the tribunal's signals ..... 91
Remember who is on the tribunal!.....111

Bernard Hanotiau

A submission must be a submission, not an encyclopedia..... 26
Respect the IBA evidence rules ..... 47
Equality does not mean deadlines should be identical..... 47
Take the rocket science out of quantum..... 68
Ideally, witnesses should testify in the language of the arbitration ..... 71
Quantum experts tend to be too long, too technical ..... 76
A better approach to legal experts .....117
Submissions or briefs? .....143

Hilary Heilbron QC

Re-direct is a difficult skill ..... 82
Fact witnesses – what not to ask ..... 86

Clifford J Hendel

Cultura sportiva – and why an outsider isn't necessarily at a disadvantage .....315
How to advocate in front of the Basketball Arbitration Tribunal .....318

Kaj Hobér

Never forget the goal..... 15
Aim for Caesar, not Cicero .....145

Ian Hunter QC

Be in control and keep it simple..... 11
Avoid open questions.....234

Michael Hwang SC

Using re-direct to correct a client's mistake ..... 81
Quit while you're ahead .....101
Dealing with an evasive professor .....115

Emmanuel Jacomy

How to cross-examine Chinese speakers .....177

Doug Jones AO

The best advocacy is a collaboration..... 45

Jean Kalicki

Persuasion starts with a powerful beginning ..... 27
Speak slowly ..... 55
Avoid bombast..... 55
Consider the road map to be your ‘elevator speech’ ..... 57
Present your argument not as an ‘argument’ ..... 59
A demonstration minus instructions equals a distraction ..... 65
Only allege bad faith when you have the ammunition.....106

Richard Kreindler

Address the issue at the earliest juncture .....335

Julian Lew QC

The art of persuasion is simplicity ..... 11
Overcomplicating is never of help..... 68

Loretta Malintoppi

Focus on the essence of the case .....294

Mark C Morril

Learn to read the room.....194

Alexis Moure

The golden rule – know your tribunal..... 4

Jan Paulsson

How less can be much, much more..... 21
A final thought on written advocacy ..... 36
Hearing etiquette ..... 54
On objections: ‘The wise advocate keeps objections to the minimum’ ..... 92
Are you sure the rules of the game are clear?..... 98
Advice to arbitrators .....107
The right number of mock arbitrators .....157

David W Rivkin

Remember: creativity requires full understanding..... 51
If the tribunal loses confidence in the expert’s view of even a few issues, it will cause them to question her opinion on other issues.....113
Frame the case in the manner that will provide a decision-making road map ...142

J William Rowley QC

An otherwise able counsel became ‘The Boy Who Cried Wolf’ ..... 28
A good initial hearing always pays dividends ..... 40
A short, well-constructed, written skeleton presents a magnificent opportunity ..... 56
The 10-Minute Rule..... 74
Defusing one expert's report .....118
There is no substitute for closing arguments.....146

Noah Rubins QC

Advice to oligarch witnesses: don't try to win; just try not to lose .....254

Eric Schwartz

Effective oral advocacy generally does not require standing .....187
Effective advocacy does not necessitate lengthy PowerPoints .....188
Memorials, please, not pleadings.....309

Ismail Selim

Counsel can confuse the roles of the tribunal and the institution .....265

Chris Seppälä

Two lessons .....284

Robert H Smit

Speak with, not at, the arbitrators .....190

Essam Al Tamini

Advice to sceptical Middle Eastern counsel: embrace the process ..... 259

Jingzhou Tao

Efficiency versus cultural sensitivity.....178

John M Townsend

The most convincing narrative will control the frame ..... 21

The case will be run the way the chair wants ..... 42

Every question is a window into the arbitrator's thinking ..... 63

PowerPoint can divide the arbitrator's attention..... 66

Open or leading questions?: It is critical to know the backgrounds of your arbitrators..... 78

How to examine the tribunal's legal expert .....123

If allocated two hours for your closing, plan it for an hour and 45 minutes .....144

Counsel who tells the tribunal that she is about to answer their questions is far more likely to have the tribunal's attention when she begins.....147

Georg von Segesser

Technical witness conferencing yielded more insight than cross-examination...126

Trust your experts and tribunal! .....134

Be ready to champion discovery and the IBA rules .....238

Cross-examination mistakes to avoid, as a civil lawyer.....240

13

Cultural Considerations in Advocacy: East Meets West

Alvin Yeo SC and Chou Sean Yu<sup>1</sup>

Introduction

Arbitration practitioners today argue their cases all over the world. More than ever, they act for parties from every conceivable jurisdiction.

The global rise of arbitration is perhaps most evident in Asia. Home to the two most populous countries in the world, Asia is not only the world's largest manufacturer but also the largest recipient of foreign investment and net capital exporter.<sup>2</sup> The opening of major Asian markets to foreign investors, coupled with the advent of the Belt and Road Initiative, has increased trade and solidified arbitration as the preferred cross-border dispute resolution mechanism, rather than national courts. The statistics demonstrate this; for example, the Singapore International Arbitration Centre (SIAC) dealt with 1,080 new cases in 2020, the first time SIAC's caseload crossed the 1,000-case threshold;<sup>3</sup> 1,018 of these cases were international in nature (94 per cent). This 1,080 figure represents a 125 per cent increase from the 479 cases filed in 2019 and a 169 per cent increase from the 402 new cases filed in 2018. The annual caseload of the China International Economic and Trade Arbitration Commission (CIETAC) was 3,615 new cases in 2020, compared with 1,352 cases in 2010

-
- 1 Alvin Yeo SC is the chairman and senior partner and Chou Sean Yu is a partner at WongPartnership LLP. The authors would like to thank Oh Sheng Loong Frank, a partner at WongPartnership LLP, for his invaluable assistance with this chapter.
  - 2 Huang Jing, 'The Rise of Asia: Implications and Challenges', Lee Kuan Yew School of Public Policy, at [1] <<https://lkyspp.nus.edu.sg/gia/article/the-rise-of-asia-implications-and-challenges>>.
  - 3 Singapore International Arbitration Centre [SIAC], 'Where the World Arbitrates', Annual Report 2020 at 16, 31 March 2021 <https://www.siac.org.sg/images/stories/articles/annual\_report/SIAC\_Annual\_Report\_2020.pdf> (accessed 1 April 2021).

(an increase of 167 per cent);<sup>4</sup> 739 of these 3,615 new cases were foreign-related.<sup>5</sup> By comparison, 946 new cases were filed with the International Chamber of Commerce (ICC) in 2020,<sup>6</sup> compared with 793 new cases in 2010 (a 19 per cent increase).<sup>7</sup> In 2021, Singapore tied in first place with London as the most preferred seat of arbitration in the world ahead of Hong Kong, Paris and Geneva. The SIAC also ranked as the most preferred arbitral institution in the Asia-Pacific and the second most preferred arbitral institution in the world, after the ICC.<sup>8</sup>

Disputes referred to international arbitration often bring together arbitrators, counsel and witnesses from different jurisdictions with different cultures and practices – in 2020 alone, the SIAC appointed 288 arbitrators (and confirmed another 145 nominated arbitrators) from more than 20 countries, including Australia, Austria, Brunei, Canada, Chile, China, France, Germany, Hong Kong, India, Indonesia, Iran, Ireland, Italy, Lebanon, Malaysia, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Nigeria, Russia, Singapore, South Africa, South Korea, Sweden, Switzerland, Thailand, the United Kingdom, the United States and Vietnam.<sup>9</sup> Despite increasing harmonisation in international arbitration (for instance, the advent of the UNCITRAL Model Law on International Commercial Arbitration in 1985 and its revision in 2006 in a bid to assist states in reforming, modernising and harmonising their laws on arbitral procedure), there remain inevitable differences arising from varied backgrounds and environments. With trade disputes worldwide increasingly involving an Asian nexus,<sup>10</sup> and the number of Belt and Road disputes involving Asian parties expected to increase in the near future,<sup>11</sup> an acute understanding of these differences would prove an invaluable soft

---

4 CIETAC Annual Caseload Statistics <<http://www.cietac.org/index.php?m=Page&a=index&id=40&l=en>> (accessed 15 April 2021).

5 CIETAC 2020 Work Report and 2021 Work Plan <<http://www.cietac.org/index.php?m=Article&a=show&id=17433&l=en>> (accessed 19 March 2021).

6 International Chamber of Commerce [ICC], 'ICC announces record 2020 caseloads in Arbitration and ADR', 12 January 2021 <<https://iccwbo.org/media-wall/news-speeches/icc-announces-record-2020-caseloads-in-arbitration-and-adr/>> (accessed 19 March 2021).

7 Thomson Reuters Practical Law, 'ICC publishes 2010 statistics', 8 February 2011 <https://uk.practicallaw.thomsonreuters.com/3-504-7454?\_lrTS=20210214090951233&transitionType=Default&contextData=%28sc.Default%29> (accessed 16 April 2021); ICC Digital Library, ICC Statistical Reports <<https://library.iccwbo.org/dr-statisticalreports.htm>> (accessed 16 April 2021).

8 White & Case LLP, '2021 International Arbitration Survey: Adapting arbitration to a changing world', 6 May 2021 <<https://www.whitecase.com/sites/default/files/2021-06/qmul-international-arbitration-survey-2021-web-single-final.pdf>> (accessed 16 June 2021); SIAC, Press Releases 2021, 'SIAC is Most Preferred Arbitral Institution in Asia-Pacific and 2nd in the World', 7 May 2021 <https://www.siac.org.sg/images/stories/press\_release/2021/Press%20Release%20SIAC%20is%20Most%20Preferred%20Arbitral%20Institution%20in%20Asia-Pacific%20and%202nd%20in%20the%20World.pdf> (accessed 16 June 2021).

9 SIAC, 'Where the World Arbitrates', Annual Report 2020 at 19-20 <https://www.siac.org.sg/images/stories/articles/annual\_report/SIAC\_Annual\_Report\_2020.pdf> (accessed 1 April 2021).

10 Michael J Moser, 'How Asia Will Change International Arbitration' in Albert Jan van den Berg (ed.), International Arbitration: The Coming of a New Age?, International Council for Commercial Arbitration [ICCA], Congress Series, Volume 17 (Kluwer Law International 2013), 62 and 63.

11 Christine Sim, 'SIAC Congress Recap: Interviews with our Editors – Perspectives from Singapore with Ariel Ye', 2 September 2020, Kluwer Arbitration Blog <<http://arbitrationblog.kluwerarbitration.com/2020/09/02/siac-congress-recap-interviews-with-our-editors-perspectives-from-singapore-with-ariel-ye/>> (accessed 23 March 2021).

skill for an advocate in his or her consideration of how best to represent the client's interests in the context of cultural diversity, particularly in a continent as varied as Asia.

Arbitration advocacy

Advocacy is the art of persuasion and the goal of an advocate is to persuade.<sup>12</sup> In an arbitration, the object of persuasion is the arbitral tribunal.

To effectively persuade the members of the tribunal, an advocate first has to understand how they process information and make decisions. Arbitrators, like all human beings, are complex. They do not make decisions in a vacuum – a submission from an advocate is tested and compared against the arbitrators' personal perceptions of the world and their own life experiences,<sup>13</sup> and decisions are made through this same lens. These perceptions are, in turn, shaped by factors such as age, gender, place of birth, social and educational background, training, work experience and culture.<sup>14</sup> Culture is 'the shared knowledge and schemes created and used by a set of people for perceiving, interpreting, expressing, and responding to the social realities around them'.<sup>15</sup> In other words, in coming to their decisions, arbitrators, like anyone else, rely on their 'sense' of how things ought to be, and this 'sense' is shaped by the cultural and social groups to which they belong.<sup>16</sup> People tend to focus on information that accords with their existing beliefs, and they assess information positively if it is consistent with those beliefs and negatively if it discredits them.<sup>17</sup>

If tribunal members, advocates and witnesses hail from different backgrounds (as is often the case for international arbitrations), the cultural diversity makes the process of persuading the tribunal complex and often difficult. For example, a tribunal's assessment of the level of competence expected of a director of a company may vary depending on each tribunal member's expectations of competency.<sup>18</sup> Even when all the participants to the arbitration are Asian, effective advocacy is by no means an easy task – Asia is a vast, disparate region that is home to a myriad different countries, cultures, religions, races, languages and legal traditions.<sup>19</sup>

---

12 Lord Igor, Singapore Academy of Law Annual Lecture 2012 – 'The Art of Advocacy' (2013) 25 SACLJ 1 at 16 <<https://journalsonline.academypublishing.org.sg/Journals/Singapore-Academy-of-Law-Journal/e-Archive/ctl/eFirstSALPDFJournalView/mid/495/ArticleId/521/Citation/JournalsOnlinePDF>>.

13 Masua Sagiv, 'Cultural Bias in Judicial Decision Making', (2015) 35 Boston College Journal of Law & Social Justice [BCJL & Soc Just] at 232.

14 Greg Laughton SC, 'Advocacy in International Arbitration', Selborne Chambers at 29; Jos Hornikx, 'Chapter 4: Cultural Differences in Perceptions of Strong and Weak Arguments', in Tony Cole, The Roles of Psychology in International Arbitration (Kluwer Law International; Kluwer Law International 2017) at 75.

15 J P Lederach, Preparing for peace: Conflict transformation across cultures (Syracuse University Press, 1995) at 9.

16 Masua Sagiv, 'Cultural Bias in Judicial Decision Making', (2015) 35 BCJL & Soc Just 229 at 232 to 235.

17 Jos Hornikx, 'Cultural Differences in Perceptions of Strong and Weak Arguments' in The Roles of Psychology in International Arbitration (Kluwer Law International, 2017), 88 to 90.

18 See, e.g., Won Kidane, 'Chapter 12 – Conversations on the Role of Culture in International Arbitration' in The Culture of International Arbitration (Oxford University Press, 2017) at 275.

19 Patrizia Anesa, 'Arbitration discourse across cultures: Asian perspectives', (2017) 13 ESP Across Cultures, 20 to 21.

Developing an advocacy strategy before an Asian tribunal

The following section discusses what an advocate can consider and do when appearing before a tribunal consisting predominantly of Asian members, who may perhaps not be cut from the traditional 'international arbitrator' cloth.

Know your tribunal

Where an arbitration involves arbitrators and advocates accustomed to different cultures, issues may arise from the inevitable differences in communication methods, meaning of communications, mental interpretations and behavioural expectations. For example, ex parte communications with arbitrators are generally prohibited in Western countries, but it is not uncommon in jurisdictions such as China, where an arbitrator may also take on the role of a mediator in the same dispute.<sup>20</sup> The Hong Kong Court of Appeal had granted leave to enforce a China-seated award (and dismissed a challenge on grounds of bias) where an arbitrator conducted mediation during a private dinner with (and paid for by) one party in the absence of the other, on the basis that such a practice was found to be acceptable by the courts of the arbitral seat.<sup>21</sup> Differences can even be seen from something as seemingly minor as deciding how long the tribunal should sit on a particular day or perhaps on which days to sit. For instance, considerable deference should be made to avoid a hearing over noon on a Friday if one of the arbitrators is a Muslim.<sup>22</sup> Equally, a hearing during the month of Ramadan should perhaps also be avoided, where possible. Similar caution should be exercised when scheduling hearings close to major festivals in Asian countries, for instance, the Golden Week in China or the Lebaran festival in Indonesia.

Accordingly, effective arbitration advocacy starts with getting to know the members that make up the tribunal and understanding their likely attitudes and beliefs, and how these attitudes and beliefs might be changed if necessary. With this understanding, an advocate can frame his or her arguments and develop a targeted presentation of the case that will resonate with the tribunal members and motivate them to decide in his or her favour.<sup>23</sup> For instance, a retired Asian judge from a more formal national court structure sitting as an arbitrator may be more comfortable conducting proceedings in a manner not too dissimilar to his or her former environs. A good advocate must therefore be prepared for 20 Sundaresh Menon, 'Some Cautionary Notes for an Age of Opportunity' (keynote address at the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators Arbitration Conference, Penang, 22 August 2013) at 6 <<https://www.supremecourt.gov.sg/docs/default-source/default-document-library/media-room/keynote-address-by-cj-sundaresh-menon-at-ciarb-conference---22-august-2013.pdf>>; Catherine Rogers, 'Fit and Function in Legal Ethics: Developing a Code of Conduct for International Arbitration', 23 Michigan Journal of International Law at 363; Wang Wenying, 'The Role of Conciliation in Resolving Disputes: A P.R.C. Perspective' (2005) 20 Ohio State Journal on Dispute Resolution at 435 ('the practice of combining arbitration with conciliation originated absolutely from Chinese indigenous cultures and legal traditions') <https://kb.osu.edu/bitstream/handle/1811/77095/1/OSJDR\_V20N2\_0421.pdf>.

---

21 Gao Haiyan v. Keeneye Holdings Ltd & New Purple Golden Resources Development Ltd [2011] HKCA 459 at [102].

22 'Part II: The Process of an Arbitration, Chapter 9: Hearings', in Jerry Waincymer, Procedure and Evidence in International Arbitration (Kluwer Law International, 2012) at 725.

23 Richard Waites and James Lawrence, 'Psychological Dynamics in International Arbitration', in Doak Bishop and Edward G Kehoe (eds.), The Art of Advocacy in International Arbitration, 2nd Ed (JurisNet, 2010), 73 to 75.

How to cross-examine Chinese speakers

Anyone who has taken part in advocacy trainings on cross-examination has been taught to ask questions that call for short, 'yes' or 'no' answers. However, this type of questioning often tends to be less effective when it comes to Chinese witnesses. Chinese people tend to be less direct than Westerners, and will frequently express themselves in a roundabout way instead of using explicit language. Pressing the witness to answer a question will rarely help, and might come across as rude or inappropriate in the eyes of Chinese arbitrators. Western lawyers who are cross-examining Chinese witnesses should, therefore, be prepared to ask the same questions from different angles, consider asking more open-ended questions, and be prepared to leave markers for the transcript in circumstances where a line of questioning fails to achieve the desired result. Another frequent difficulty arises from the complexity of the Chinese language, which almost invariably results in difficulties of interpretation during cross-examination. Speaking slowly is therefore essential, and it might sometimes be advisable to consider consecutive, rather than simultaneous, interpretation.

– Emmanuel Jacomy, Shearman & Sterling LLP

such cultural differences, which perhaps may not represent the international norms that he or she is used to.

An advocate's job to persuade can perhaps be made easier through the thoughtful selection and nomination of an arbitrator with the desired understanding of the legal and business culture for the case at hand. Since it is safe to assume that arbitrators talk to each other about the case during arbitration and deliberations, such an arbitrator can play the role of a 'cultural intermediary and translator'<sup>24</sup> by explaining the social and cultural intricacies relevant to the dispute (the understanding of which may be helpful or even essential to the advocate's case) that the other members of the tribunal might otherwise be unable to comprehend because of inexperience or lack of knowledge. A civil law arbitrator may, for instance, be better placed to understand the business law norms of an Indonesian or a Japanese party.

It is not the intention of this chapter to explore the precise differences in communication and behavioural norms that exist between arbitration participants from different cultures. However, we will briefly discuss a few points of which an advocate can usefully take note.

Language

If the language of the arbitration is English but English is not the first language for one or more participants, or if the participants have varying levels of proficiency in the language, it is necessary for the advocate to tailor his or her written and spoken communications to ensure that everyone involved can understand them. In such situations, an advocate

---

<sup>24</sup> Ilhyung Lee, 'Practice and Predicament: The Nationality of the International Arbitrator (With Survey Results)', (2007) 31 Fordham International Law Journal at 604.

Efficiency versus cultural sensitivity

That parties should have a reasonable opportunity to present their case has become widely accepted international practice. Some lawyers from developing countries lack the advocacy skill to efficiently help their client to present the case. International arbitration is an activity in which one side can easily be a relative newcomer. Arbitrators should give some consideration and additional opportunities for them to present their client's case.

In addition, lawyers in many common law countries are not familiar with advocacy skills such as cross-examination. Many lawyers may have to use language of arbitration that is not necessarily their native language. To be patient with the advocacy of these lawyers is a must for international arbitrators.

Having a flexible attitude to meet the conflicting interests of disputing parties is a delicate balance that the arbitrators should work out with the parties who come from different legal and cultural backgrounds so that the arbitral procedure will not be unreasonably delayed and, at the same time, parties will have real and reasonable opportunities to present their case.

— Jingzhou Tao, Arbitration Chambers

may wish to adopt clear, simple and concise language without colloquialisms,<sup>25</sup> while at the same time ensuring that the language used is not so basic as to lose the interest of an arbitrator whose first language is English.<sup>26</sup> Conversely, if the arbitrator's first language is not English, the advocate would do well to ensure that his or her oral submissions are clearly understood.

An advocate also has to be cognisant of the fact that translations are rarely perfect – words spoken by a native English speaker may not have the same meaning once translated into another language, and vice versa. With the rise of cross-border arbitration involving international parties, being conversant in multiple languages or having an advocate on your team with this linguistic capability can only be an advantage.

Technical language proficiency aside, the manner in which people communicate, both verbal and non-verbal, differs from culture to culture, notwithstanding the fact that they might be speaking the same language. Participants in an arbitration frequently converse in the same language but sometimes do not fully understand the meaning of or the reasons behind what is said, resulting in them talking past each other.<sup>27</sup> Words, facial expressions, body language and gestures can be interpreted differently by people of different cultures. This is particularly the case for South Asians, where a shake of the head may mean an affirmation of a point rather than a denial. Further, something as simple as a wave of the palm can carry multiple meanings, and can be read in a different manner depending on a person's culture.

---

25 Fernando Dias Simoes, 'The Language of International Arbitration' (2017) 35(1) Conflict Resolution Quarterly at 94: 'An arbitrator who lacks the necessary fluency in the language of arbitration may fail to understand some of the crucial issues necessary to resolve the dispute.'

26 Greg Laughton SC, 'Advocacy in International Arbitration', Selborne Chambers at 60.

27 Fernando Dias Simoes, 'The Language of International Arbitration' (2017) 35(1) Conflict Resolution Quarterly at 95.

Style and tone of communication

Apart from language, an advocate should also be aware of the cultural sensitivities of the tribunal members and tailor the style and tone of his or her communications accordingly, to maximise the persuasiveness of his or her message.

For example, an American litigation lawyer who is used to advocating before lay juries in the US courts may subconsciously advocate his or her case in an international arbitration with the same level of aggressiveness as in an adversarial system. Accustomed to oral depositions of witnesses where the 'goal often is to create . . . short snippets of testimony in the form of admissions that can be inserted into summary judgment papers . . . to show the presence or absence of factual issues',<sup>28</sup> he or she may also carry over the same aggressive, accusatory questioning style when cross-examining witnesses in international arbitration. This would not be well received by an East Asian civil law arbitrator who is more used to an inquisitorial and conciliatory approach, and who, because of social conventions influenced by Taoist or Confucian precepts that define how East Asians behave and communicate,<sup>29</sup> is sensitive to behaviour that implicitly diminishes the position of the recipient and results in a loss of face.<sup>30</sup> If one or more members of the tribunal hails from an East Asian jurisdiction, an advocate may wish to consider adopting a measured and neutral tone in his or her communications, while explaining the case in a clear, concise, accurate, reasoned and authoritative way.

An East Asian arbitrator also may not appreciate a zealous and aggressive cross-examination of an elderly Asian witness.<sup>31</sup> Deference and courtesy are important, expected behavioural norms for an advocate who wishes to command the respect of an Asian arbitrator.

Similarly, an East Asian arbitrator may not favour the arguments of an advocate who is not alive to the nuances of the 'high context' communication style (i.e., with much of the meaning derived from the background culture and left unsaid) of an East Asian witness (as opposed to Western 'low-context' communication styles, which are generally more explicit) and who, as a result, relies on the witness's apparent reticence as evidence of a lack of credibility.<sup>32</sup>

An advocate therefore has to be mindful of and sensitive to cultural differences in his or her communications and behaviour during the arbitration, so as not to offend any arbitrators and other participants to the arbitration or detract from the persuasiveness of his or her arguments.

---

28 Doak Bishop and James Carter, 'The United States Perspective and Practice of Advocacy', in Doak Bishop and Edward G Kehoe (eds.), The Art of Advocacy in International Arbitration, 2nd Ed (JurisNet, 2010) at 521.

29 Christopher Lau, 'The Asian Perspective and Practice of Advocacy', in Doak Bishop and Edward G Kehoe (eds.), The Art of Advocacy in International Arbitration, 2nd Ed (JurisNet, 2010) at 567.

30 Patrizia Anesa, 'Arbitration discourse across cultures: Asian perspectives' (2017) 13 ESP Across Cultures at 22.

31 Kyu-taik Sung, 'Respect for Elders: Myths and Realities in East Asia' (2000) 5(4) Journal of Ageing and Identity at 198 to 201, underlining the historical and cultural aspects of respect for the elderly in East Asia.

32 Theodore Cheng, 'Developing Skills to Address Cultural Issues in Arbitration and Mediation' (2017) 72(3) Dispute Resolution Journal at 2.

Role of mediation and conciliation

An international arbitration advocate should also be aware of and prepared for the importance of mediation and conciliation in some Asian cultures, and their influence on the arbitration process. As a result of the influence of Confucian values<sup>33</sup> and principles in some East Asian cultures, non-confrontational methods of conflict resolution (such as mediation and conciliation)<sup>34</sup> have historically been the preferred methods of dispute resolution in countries such as China<sup>35</sup> and Japan,<sup>36</sup> and are still ingrained in their legal cultures. This can be seen in the arbitration laws and rules of arbitration institutions from these countries. For example, the arbitration laws and rules of China, Hong Kong and Japan contain specific provisions for conciliation, mediation and settlement to be conducted by the arbitral tribunal, and for the tribunal to render an award in terms of the settlement.<sup>37</sup> Arbitral tribunals comprised of Chinese or Japanese arbitrators may therefore expect, or even request, parties to attempt to mediate and reconcile their differences before the substantive hearing; it is a widely held perception among Chinese arbitrators that it is the goal of the arbitrator to ensure that parties are able to preserve their long-term relationship.<sup>38</sup> It has been observed that in countries like China, Korea and Japan, contracts and legalism are seen 'as something as of a last resort, [used] only if personal relations and verbal agreements fail'.<sup>39</sup> A survey conducted with Chinese arbitrators showed that they regard the combination of mediation and arbitration as 'reflective of traditional values', including that of 'the pursuit of harmony' and 'avoiding litigation'.<sup>40</sup> Similar cultural influences exist in other parts of Asia. For example, Indonesia's underlying philosophy of Pancasila calls for 'deliberation to reach a consensus and discourages contention in all things, where possible'.<sup>41</sup>

-
- 33 See, e.g., Confucius, The Analects Book XIII (Robert Eno trans) <http://www.indiana.edu/~p374/Analects\_of\_Confucius\_\(Eno-2015\).pdf.pdf)>: '子曰：聽訟，吾猶人也，必也使無訟乎' (The Master said: 'In hearing lawsuits, I am no better than others. What is imperative is to make it so that there are no lawsuits.'). See also, Shahla F Ali, 'Barricades and Checkered Flags: An Empirical Examination of the Perceptions of Roadblocks and Facilitators of Settlement among Arbitration Practitioners in East Asia and the West' (2010) 19(2) Pacific Rim Law & Policy Journal, 257 to 262.
- 34 Patrizia Anesa, 'Arbitration discourse across cultures: Asian perspectives', (2017) 13 ESP Across Cultures at 22.
- 35 Gabrielle Kaufmann-Kohler and Fan Kun, 'Integrating Mediation into Arbitration: Why It Works in China' (2008) 25(4) Journal of International Arbitration at 480.
- 36 Tony Cole, 'Commercial Arbitration in Japan – Contributions to the Debate on Japanese "Non-Litigiousness"' (2007) 40(1) New York University Journal of International Law and Politics, 59 to 63; Lara M Pair J D, 'Cross-Cultural Arbitration: Do the differences between cultures still influence international commercial arbitration despite harmonization?', (2002) 9(57) ILSA Journal of International and Comparative Law at 68.
- 37 See, for example, Section 33 of the Hong Kong Arbitration Ordinance; Article 36 of the HKIAC Administered Arbitration Rules 2013; Article 47 of the CIETAC Arbitration Rules; Article 38 of the Japanese Arbitration Law; and Article 43 of the Arbitration Rules of the Beijing Arbitration Commission 2015.
- 38 Shahla Ali, 'Approaching the Global Arbitration Table: Comparing the Advantages of Arbitration as Seen by Practitioners in East Asia and the West', (2009) 28(4) Review of Litigation at 784.
- 39 Jun Hee Kim and Zachary Sharpe, 'Culture, Contracts and Performance in East Asia', 72(1) Dispute Resolution Journal at 5.
- 40 Fan Kun, 'Glocalization [sic] of Arbitration: Transnational Standards Struggling with Local Norms through the Lens of Arbitration Transplantation in China', 18 Harvard Negotiation Law Review (2013), 214 to 215.
- 41 Karen Gordon Mills, 'National Report for Indonesia (2018 through 2019)', Lise Bosman (ed.), ICCA, International Handbook on Commercial Arbitration (Kluwer Law International 2019, Supplement No. 104, February 2019) at 1.

A good example of cultural differences – traits of Asian witnesses

In this era of cross-border disputes and globalisation, arbitrators need to be sensitive to cultural differences and different legal traditions. Tribunals must earn the respect of all parties involved, which invariably means affording them, their culture and their laws the respect they deserve. There may also be a mismatch of representation, which needs to be recognised sympathetically. For Asian witnesses, aggressive cross-examination that makes them lose face may backfire with the tribunal, particularly if they are based in Asia. Asian witnesses may smile during cross-examination but this is not a sign of agreement with the other side's case, or a show of disrespect. Conversely, in some Western cultures, they see this as a sign of mental instability or a suspicious attempt to win over the tribunal.

– David Bateson, 39 Essex Chambers

Advocates who appear unprepared for, or unwilling to attempt, reconciliatory measures may be perceived as insincere and disrespectful towards the dispute resolution process.

The entry into force of the Singapore Convention on Mediation, also known as the United Nations Convention on International Settlement Agreements Resulting from Mediation, on 12 September 2020, with signatories from Asian states such as China, Korea, Laos and the Philippines, reflects the rising primacy of mediation and conciliation as a dispute resolution tool.<sup>42</sup> Advocates should be attuned to the cultural preferences of the members of the arbitral tribunal, in considering the possible role of mediation and conciliation in or alongside the arbitration process.

Know the opportunities for persuasion

Besides knowing the tribunal, it is also important for an advocate to recognise that advocacy is not just about oral or written submissions at the merits hearing. An arbitrator's decision-making process starts from the time of his or her appointment, as that is when he or she starts to evaluate and assess the parties, their advocates and the information presented. While written and oral submissions represent the two most obvious opportunities for advocacy in international arbitration, every action taken, and every contact with, statement made or document submitted to the tribunal at every stage of the arbitration represents an avenue for persuasion, and should be made with the ultimate aim of instilling confidence in one's case and the result sought in the tribunal.<sup>43</sup> This is particularly the case for arbitrations involving Asian parties and arbitrators.

Even though parties to an arbitration generally agree (failing which, the tribunal would direct) on the arbitration rules that lay out the basic procedure for the arbitration, differences in the individual legal traditions and practices of advocates and arbitrators still often give rise to different expectations of how these rules are to be applied and followed. While the many differences between the legal traditions and practices of different countries cannot be oversimplified, there are striking differences between the two legal families to which most legal systems belong – that is, common law and civil law; to further complicate matters, there are significant procedural differences that exist even within the two legal families.<sup>44</sup> An international arbitration advocate seeking to persuade members of a tribunal from different legal systems would be well advised to keep these differences in mind when formulating a persuasion strategy.

<sup>42</sup> Singapore Convention on Mediation Media Release, 'Singapore Convention on Mediation Enters into Force', 12 September 2020 <<https://www.singaporeconvention.org/media/media-release/2020-09-12-singapore-convention-on-mediation-enters-into-force>>.

<sup>43</sup> Peter Leaver and Henry Forbes Smith, 'The British Perspective and Practice of Advocacy' in Doak Bishop and Edward G Kehoe (eds.), The Art of Advocacy in International Arbitration, 2nd Ed (JurisNet, 2010) at 474.

Pleadings

While pleadings are an essential part of every arbitration and institutional arbitration rules provide for the submission of such documents setting out each party's case, there is no fixed precept in international arbitration on (and the institutional rules often do not stipulate) how detailed a party's pleadings must be. Some arbitrators and advocates would be used to, and may prefer, a concise document setting out central propositions of fact and law on which the party relies, while others may expect a full statement of a party's case, complete with all the particulars and evidence supporting it.<sup>45</sup> An advocate therefore has to take into account the background and likely preferences of the members of the tribunal in deciding the level of detail of the pleadings, so as to ensure that the party's case is effectively conveyed and easily understood.

An arbitrator from an Asian jurisdiction with a common law heritage (likely to be inherited from the British) would perhaps be more accustomed to exhaustive pleadings than an arbitrator from a background where pleadings play a less important role.

Documentary evidence

One can expect a party to voluntarily disclose all documents on which it relies and that are necessary to support its case. But what about relevant documents that a party chooses not to disclose, perhaps because they are unhelpful to its case? Common law arbitrators and advocates would be familiar with applications and orders for document production to compel a party to search for and produce these documents; however, this practice may not be palatable to Asian civil law arbitrators and advocates since, with their legal background, parties are generally under no obligation to disclose documents in their possession or control that are unhelpful to their case, and civil law courts in Asia generally refuse to assist with such applications.<sup>46</sup>

---

44 'Part I: Policy and Principles. Chapter 1: The Nature of Procedure and Policy Considerations', in Jeffrey Waincymer, Procedure and Evidence in International Arbitration (Kluwer Law International, 2012), 41 to 42.

45 Nikola S Georgiev, Cultural differences or cultural clash? The future of International Commercial Arbitration (School of Oriental and African Studies, University of London, 2012), 13 to 14.

46 See, e.g., Anna Magdalena Kubalczyk, 'Evidentiary Rules in International Arbitration – A Comparative Analysis of Approaches and the Need for Regulation' (2015) 3(1), Groningen Journal of International Law at 93; Craig Wagnild, 'Civil Law Discovery in Japan: A Comparison of Japanese and US Methods of Evidence Collection in Civil Litigation' (Winter 2002) 3(1), Asian-Pacific Law & Policy Journal at 16; Qifan Cui, 'Document Production in Chinese Litigation and International Arbitration' (2011) 6(2), Journal of Cambridge Studies at 73.

While the International Bar Association's (IBA) Rules on the Taking of Evidence in International Arbitration aim to balance common and civil law approaches in respect of document disclosure,<sup>47</sup> it has been observed that the extent to which production of documents is granted is still unpredictable and differs from case to case.<sup>48</sup> The overall structure in different arbitration proceedings may appear similar, but their details may differ significantly as a result of arbitrators from different legal and cultural backgrounds employing their own approaches within the framework set out in the IBA Rules. This phenomenon is certainly true in Asia.

An advocate should therefore take into account the legal background of the members of the tribunal in deciding how best to pitch an application for document disclosure, and the scope of disclosure sought. For example, an Asian civil law arbitrator may view a request for a wide-ranging discovery order to be a redundant and inefficient exercise that slows down the arbitral process, and be less inclined to grant it. Conversely, an arbitrator accustomed to the common law legal system may be more inclined to draw an adverse inference against a party that is not forthcoming with the disclosure of evidence. The advocate's submissions would therefore have to be tailored to take into account such sensitivities.

Witness evidence

It is fairly standard practice in international arbitrations for parties to tender statements from their witnesses prior to the substantive main hearing. However, cultural differences may give rise to different expectations regarding the scope and content required in such statements. Asian civil law advocates and arbitrators may expect witness statements to simply set out a short summary of the evidence or topics on which the witness may address the tribunal at the hearing, with the witness to give oral evidence beyond the statement during the hearing;<sup>49</sup> whereas common law advocates and arbitrators may expect witness statements to cover every point at issue and contain everything the witness has to say. Where there is ambiguity on the expected scope and content of witness statements, an advocate in an international arbitration may wish to seek the tribunal's directions on this issue so that he or she can prepare the witness statements in the form that would be most persuasive to the tribunal.

One thing an advocate should note when dealing with witnesses from Asian countries where business cultures are heavily influenced by Confucian ideals (such as China, Japan and Korea) is the importance and influence of hierarchy in business organisations. In these countries, junior employees may not feel comfortable about disagreeing with someone of a higher level in the business hierarchy, and may in fact go out of their way to ensure that their recollections are consistent with their more senior colleagues. As observed by a senior arbitration practitioner, the junior employee does this not out of a desire to be dishonest, but because of a perceived duty to support and be loyal to one's superiors, such that if the 47 D W Shenton, 'An Introduction to the IBA Rules of Evidence', (1985) Arbitration International, 119 to 120.

---

48 Pierre Karrer, 'The Civil Law and Common Law Divide: An International Arbitrator Tells It Like He Sees It' in AAA Handbook on International Arbitration and ADR, 2nd Ed (JurisNet, 2010), 53 to 54.

49 Anthony Sinclair, 'Differences in the Approach to Witness Evidence between the Civil and Common Law Traditions', in Doak Bishop and Edward G Kehoe (eds.), The Art of Advocacy in International Arbitration, 2nd Ed (JurisNet, 2010), 34 to 35.

junior employee's account is inconsistent with that of a more senior employee, the more senior employee must be right.<sup>50</sup> An advocate should be aware of this possibility when confronted with consistent accounts that seem too good to be true, and when dealing with his or her own witnesses, take the necessary steps to pre-empt the probability that the truth would be revealed in cross-examination during the substantive hearing.

Use of experts

A good advocate should be aware that whether a tribunal considers an expert to be reliable or qualified may depend on culture-driven expectations of each tribunal member, and this should therefore be a factor to be taken into consideration when selecting experts.<sup>51</sup>

In recent years, arbitral tribunals in Asia have increasingly adopted the practice of witness conferencing, or 'hot-tubbing', as the preferred method of expert evidence presentation. As with general cross-examination, even when posing questions to an Asian witness, an advocate should keep in mind the Asian sensitivity to 'loss of face' and not be overly aggressive in his or her questioning. Some Asian experts can be fairly modest and less participative when engaged in a witness conferencing session and a good advocate would have to be astute to ensure that his or her expert's effectiveness is not diminished because of a cultural disposition.<sup>52</sup>

Concluding remarks

'A good lawyer knows the law, but a great lawyer knows the judge.' While this phrase is often used in a humorous manner to depict the legal profession, it encapsulates one essential quality of a good advocate, which is to understand the attitudes and beliefs of the decision makers. As highlighted in this chapter, an advocate in an international arbitration involving participants from different cultures in Asia should go beyond that and seek to understand not just the members of the tribunal, but all the participants, including witnesses and opposing counsel. Only then can an advocate develop a persuasion strategy that is truly effective.

---

50 Christopher K Tahbaz, 'Cross-Cultural Perspectives on Effective Advocacy in International Arbitration – or, How to Avoid Losing in Translation' (2012) 14(2), Asian Dispute Review at 52.

51 Jos Hornikx, 'Cultural Differences in Perceptions of Strong and Weak Arguments' in The Roles of Psychology in International Arbitration (Kluwer Law International, 2017) at 92.

52 See, e.g., Cooke, Ellis, Hayler, Choo, Tan and Church-Morley, 'Heated Debates: Giving Concurrent Evidence in the Hot Tub' (2019) Singapore Academy of Law Practitioner 7 at para. 13 < <https://journalsonline.academypublishing.org.sg/Journals/SAL-Practitioner/Arbitration/ctl/eFirstSALPDFJournalView/mid/590/ArticleId/1370/Citation/JournalsOnlinePDF>>.

Successful advocacy is always a challenge. Throw in different languages, a matrix of (exotic) laws and differing cultural backgrounds as well and you have advocacy in international arbitration.

Global Arbitration Review's The Guide to Advocacy is for lawyers who wish to transcend these obstacles and be as effective in the international sphere as they are used to being elsewhere. Aimed at practitioners of all backgrounds and at all levels of experience, this Guide covers everything from case strategy to the hard skills of written advocacy and cross-examination, and much more. It also contains the wit and wisdom on advocacy of more than 40 practising arbitrators, including some of the world's biggest names in this field.

Visit globalarbitrationreview.com
Follow @garalerts on Twitter
Find us on LinkedIn

ISBN 978-1-83862-574-0